

Granutools is a leading-edge provider of instrument for powder flow characterization for the pharmaceutical, food and new materials sectors

Particle Scientist

Granutools is currently looking for a Particle Scientist with a passion for Science and Technology to work closely with customers on applications of the instruments developed by Granutools.

Main responsibilities involve:

- Support customers' instruments evaluations with data generation, analysis and interpretation
- Create application results to show system performance
- Produce application notes and papers together with customers and partners like research centers and universities
- Support new applications development
- Drive joined development projects
- Produce content for publications in the specialized press
- Coordinate and join high level events like congress and fairs

We are looking for:

- Self-motivated passionate scientist in a senior role with materials-, process- or chemical background
- Strong scientific or engineering background:
 - expert knowledge working with powders or fluids experience evaluating powder characterization instrument is a plus
 - specific knowledge of pharma or additive manufacturing production process is a plus
 - some experience working with simulation packages is a plus
- Project management skills
- Excellent communication and networking skills (written and spoken English)
- Willingness to travel up to 30%
- Interest to work in a start-up environment

We offer:

- Possibility to develop a high-level network among the scientific and industrial community
- Key role to build up a new business in a small company with high growth potential
- Chance to put a new technology as a reference in the field by solving important problems
- Work with top tier companies with large R&D and industrial facilities
- Opportunity to lead projects with clear and measurable objectives
- Motivating working environment involving many different tasks in a fastmoving company
- Good salary package

Starting day and availability:

- Location: Awans (Liege, Belgium)
- ASAP
- Full time

Contact: Marie-Laure Mullenders

Email: admin@granutools.com - Mobile : +32 494 63 76 85 – www.granutools.com